Overview

Courtney Moore is a litigator who represents businesses and other insured clients in high-stakes civil matters. She focuses her practice on general liability, commercial transportation, products liability, and wrongful death matters. She handles matters involving catastrophic injuries, complex contractual relationships, and significant exposure.

Before joining MG+M, Courtney practiced at national and regional litigation firms, where she defended businesses and individuals in state and federal courts throughout California. Earlier in her career, she represented plaintiffs in complex and highly sensitive personal injury matters, including claims involving institutional negligence affecting children.

Outside of work, Courtney enjoys traveling with her family, discovering new restaurants, and testing ambitious recipes at home.
